

Creating a site

To create a site, click on the Plus ( + ) button on the FrogBar, in the pop-up, choose Site

This will open the New Site Wizard.

At this point, you have some choices – you can start from scratch with a blank page template or use a template your school's Frog Admin has created, or you can click through to Frog Templates on the left-hand-side and choose one of the dozens of pre-created templates we have built.

It's worth noting that sites created from templates are not fixed. Everything in any site can be changed. The Frog Templates are there as starting points only. You have complete control.

Once you've selected your template, for this video I'm going to select the Blank Template in My Templates, I click Next.

Now it's time to name my site and if I choose, give my site a description. It's not mandatory to have a description, but it can be useful when looking for sites later.

Do NOT click the Create Template checkbox. We'll talk about this feature in a later video, so for now, it's really important to remember NOT to click the box.

Once you've given your site a name, you can either click Create or Next.

If you choose Next, you get to specify the theme and site icon, however you can also do this during editing. We can add tags on the next screen, but you get the opportunity to do this when you're sharing, so for now, we'll leave these two screens and just choose Create.

At this point, the wizard closes and your new site opens.

Ready for us to start editing.
